Mixed metal finishes in a home offer visual contrast, depth, and personalization. They create an intriguing interplay of textures that adds visual interest and gives your space a custom, curated look. The versatility of mixed metals means it can work for a variety of design styles and is also a great way to balance warm and cool tones in a kitchen or bathroom. Most of the time, we recommend sticking with a maximum of two finishes in a bathroom or kitchen for the most timeless look.

Insider Tips

The key to timeless interior design lies in creating a harmonious balance between classic elements and contemporary touches. Neutral color palettes, natural materials, and minimalistic aesthetics often work best here, and quality materials are crucial. Investing in well-crafted, durable furniture and incorporating elements of symmetry and proportion will help create a design that remains stylish and relevant for years to come.

Q&A: When and how do you tell when your home is in need of an update?

A: There are many reasons and seasons to update your home and these vary depending on the home itself and the homeowner's personal preferences. Major updates can take several months, so you'll want to make sure you haven't committed to hosting any events. It can actually be perfect timing if you're planning to be out of the house for an extended vacation!

Reasons to update include when the space isn't functioning well for how you use it or isn't quite your style. If something needs to be repaired, you'll save energy and effort by taking care of updates at the same time. Lastly, if it's been over 10 years since the last update and the home feels dated and tired, it's probably time!
